A High-Tempered Girl.

"No, I won't!" said Theodora Reed impetuously; "I won't! I wont! so there's an end of the matter."

Theodora was busy making pear marmalade, with a pocket handkerchief fastened, Beatrice Cenci fashion, over her luxuriant brown tresses, a huge, checked apron enveloping her trim little figure, and sleeves rolled up above the elbow.

Deacon Powers stood opposite, nervously feeling of his bristly chin.

Theodora was young and pretty, with limpid hazel eyes, rings of brown hair straying like floss silk over her temples, and rosy lips.

Deacon Powers was elderly and wrinkled, with an indescribable sharpness in his face, as if it had worn away in contact with the world.

"It's getting to be an imposition," said Theodora, brusquely. "Last week we had two tract distributors here, and week before that old Dr. Doddington and his wife and three children stayed here five days, so that it should be convenient for the semi-annual convention. In fact, I don't remember a single month without company since we have lived at the parsonage. And we have no girl now, and papa has the neuralgia; so you must tell this young clergyman to go somewhere else. I won't have him here!"

"But, my dear Miss Reed—"

"I'm not your 'dear Miss Reed'" said Theodora, vehemently. "If I was you I would try to spare me a little of all this annoyance. Yes, I know I am the minister's daughter, and as such, am expected to have neither feelings or preference, nor sensibilities of any kind. But I'm human, after all; and I decline to keep a perpetual free hotel for every one who comes in this direction."

"Your predecessor, Miss Reed—the lamented Mrs Smiley—was never, averse to entertaining the saints," reproachfully uttered the deacon. "Her door was ever open and her amiable hospitality—"

"Oh, yes, I know!" said Theodora. "And she died at forty. I intend to live a great deal longer than that. She was killed by sewing-societies and company, and Dorcas meetings. I've had enough of that sort of thing, and I mean to stop. If the church-people wish papa to entertin all creation, they must raise his salary—that's all."

"But, my good young friend—"

At that moment, however, a third person unexpectedly appeared upon the scene. The door between the parlor and kitchen, which had, unperceived by Miss Reed and Deacon Powers, stood slightly ajar, opened—a tall, frank-faced young man stood there, with a decided color on his cheeks.

"Deacon Powers," said he, "pray assure this young lady that I will not tresspass upon her hospitality. Perhaps we had better go on to the next place at once."

There was something in his air and manner which caused the deacon to shoot out of the kitchen like an arrow from the bow, and the next moment Theodora was alone.

She colored and bit her lip.

"It's all true," she said, "every word of it. But I'm a little sorry he heard it. Perhaps he wasn't to blame, after all."

And Theodora went vigorously on with the pear marmalade, until the old clock in the corner struck eleven; and then she poured out a cup of chocolate, and ran upstairs to her father's room.

Mr. Reed was sitting before his study table, with his temples resting on his hands, his elbows among the chaos of books and papers. Theo went to his side at once, and laid her hand on his head.

"Papa," she said, wistfully, "is your neuralgia worse?"

"Very much worse, Theo," he said, lifting his pain-glazed eyes to her eager, questioning young face. "I do not believe that I can preach to-morrow; I do not believe that I can eyer prepare a sermon."

Theodora looked aghast.

"But, papa," said she, "what can you do? Old Dr. Denton is out of town, and—"

"My dear," said the poor clergyman, pressing his hand to his throbbing temples, "you must send a note to Mr. Hervey, and ask him to officiate in my place, as a special favor."

"Who is Mr. Hervey?" asked Theodora.

"I do not know," said Mr. Reed, "I only know that he was to be at Windfield this week. Most probably he will be at the Star hotel."

"Very well, papa," said Theodora, feigning a cheerfulness that she was very far from feeling. "Drink your chocolate now, there's a darling, and don't fret yourself the least bit in the world, and I will see that all the arrangements are made."

So she ran down stairs and set herself to thinking.

A substitute must be found for the pulpit, and here it was twelve o'clock on Saturday!

She sat down and wrote a little note, consulting the dictionary more then once to make sure of no errors, and carefully copying the whole, because of a spattering little blot which fell, as if "of malice aforesaid," directly across the second line.

"DEAR MR. HERVEY:—Will you grant us the great favor of preaching in papa's place to-morrow? He is very ill of neuralgia, and is unable even to prepare a sermon. We shall be greatly obliged if you will dine with us to-morrow after church.

THEODORA REED.

And after satisfying herself that it was all quite right, she carried it herself to the Star hotel.

Mr. Hervey was not in, hadn't been in since morning.

But they would give him the note directly on his arrival; so Theordora hurried home again, and in the course of the afternoon, a little colored boy from the hotel brought a card, on one side of which was engraved, "Henry Hervey," while upon the other was written the words "with the greatest pleasure."

And the minister's daughter, "on hospitable thought intent," roasted a pair of chickens, collected the ingredients for a salad, made a peach-pie and baked a loaf of bread, which was light and white as sea foam.

"I'll show him that the country girls understand good housekeeping," said Theo to herself.

Mr. Reed was not able to leave his sofa the next morning, so Theo put on her pretty blue-and-white muslin dress and the gypsy hat with the roses that became her delicate complexion so perfectly, and went to church, after first seeing that the table was all spread for the cold dinner, and the coffee-pot simmering on the stove.

The church was full.

Mr. Hervey was a rising luminary in the theological horizon, and almost every one in Windfield had heard of him, so there was no lack of an audience.

But to Theodora's ineffable dismay, the tall young man who walked so composedly out on the platform was no other than the frank-faced person who had stood on her kitchen threshold, only the day before, and overheard her diatribe on the subject of undesired guests.

Under the shadow of the roses she turned redder still.

"Oh, my tongue—my unlucky tongue!" she said, frantically, to herself. "I always knew it would lead me into trouble! What must he have thought?"

And, as may be inferred, Theodora's devotions—albeit, she was in reality a sweet, sincere little christian—did not do her much good that morning.

Mr. Hervey came across into the parsonage when the sermon was over, and held out his hand to blushing Theodora.

"We meet again," said he, with a smile.

"I can't help it," burst out Theodora, in desperation. "I meant every word I said, Mr. Hervey; it is all true. But—but it didn't apply to you!"

"I understand," he said, quietly. "I was a little nettled at the moment, for I merely wished for a temporary shelter while they were refurnishing my room at the Star hotel. But I can easily see, now that I have thought the matter over in a new light, that a minister's family must be sadly pestered with volunteer guests. Pray think no more of it, Miss Reed."

And he spoke so frankly and pleasantly that Theo became quite at her ease, while he carved the chicken and she prepared the crisp lettuce and limid oil for the salad.

He was taken up to Mr. Reed's sick-room after dinner, and had a pleasant chat with him before the afternoon service.

"You have done me a great favor, sir," said the elder clergyman, when at length he parted from his guest. "And we should esteem it a privilege—my little girl and I—if you would make it your home at the parsonage during your stay in town. Should we not, Theo?"

Theodora hung down her head, and turned pink to the very roots of her hair.

"Yes," she said, almost inaudibly. "Only—I am ashamed to say so. Oh, papa," hiding her face on his shoulder, "I have behaved so badly! I never should have taken it for granted that Mr. Hervey was like the rest!"

And then, infinitely to Mr. Hervey's amusement, she told the whole story of her interview with Deacon Powers.

Mr. Reed smiled, as he stroked Theo's head.

"My little girl is only a little girl," said he, "and sometimes forgets that the tongue is an unruly member. But she will improve as she grows older."

Mr. Hervey spent the summer at Windfield. He was revising the proof sheets of a theological volume, and liked the quiet and seclusion of the little village.

Perhaps, too, he liked something else about it. At all events, although he did not make the parsonage his home, he spent a great deal of his time there.

"Theo," he said, one day—they had become fast friends by this time—"you have tasted so many of the petty trials, and annoyances of being a minister's daughter that I wonder if you would ever consent to be a minister's wife."

"Well," said Theo, half laughing, half blushing, "it would depend a good deal upon who the minister was."

"Suppose it was Henry Hervey?"

"Do you really mean it?" said Theo, suddenly growing grave.

"It is strange, isn't it," said he, "that I shouldd lose my heart to such a little termagant as you proved yourself the first day I ever saw you? But it is a foregone conclusion—I am entirely at your mercy. Sweet Theo, will you be my wife?"

And Theo placed her hands in his with a lovely look of awe and happiness, and answered:

"I will!"

Deacon Powers could not comprehend it at all.

"If he marries such a high-tempered girl as that," said the deacon, "he does it at his peril. Why, I never was so berated in my life as I was that day at the parsonage."

"But, pa," said the deacon's daughter, "every woman finds her master soon or late. Now, I think Theodora Reed has found hers."—Helen Forrest Graves.

It Made the Engineer Cry.

'Yes, indeed, we have some queer incidents happen to us,' said the engineer. 'I was running along one afternoon pretty lively when I approached a little village where the track cuts through the streets. I slacked up a little, but was still making good speed, when suddenly, about twelve rods ahead of me, a little girl, not more than three years old, toddled on to the track. There was no way to save her. It was impossible to stop or even slack much in that distance, as my train was heavy and the grade descending. In ten seconds it would have been all over, and, after reversing and applying the brake, I shut my eyes. I didn't want to see any more. As we slowed down my fireman stuck his head out of the cab window to see what I'd stopped for, when he laughed and shouted to me, 'Jim, look here!' I looked, and there was a great big Newfoundland dog holding that little girl in his mouth, leisurely walking toward the house where she evidently belonged. She was kicking and crying, so that I know she wasn't hurt, and the dog had saved her. My fireman thought it funny and kept on laughing, but I cried. I just couldn't help it. I have a little girl of my own at home.'

Little Jack: "Let's play we is married." Little Nell: "No I won't. It ain't right." Little Jack: "Why ain't it." Little Nell: "Tause mamma said we musn't quarrel."

Two Lawyers and a Cat.

Two lawyers were domesticated in the rude hotel of a country town. The hotel was crowded, and the two legal luminaries had to occupy the same room.

Lawyer Clark lay with his head to the north on one side, and lawyer Thomas lay with his head to the south on the other side of the room. So far as that room was concerned, it might be said that their heads represented the north and south poles respectively.

The central part of the room was deemed neutral ground, in which the occupants of the different beds had equal rights. Here in picturesque confusion lay the boots, etc., of the sleepers. There were no lights, and though the door was open, there being no moon, the night was very dark in that room.

The wily lawyers, who had been opposing counsel in a case tried in the town court that day, and had opposed each other with the contumacy of wild pigs, were now the very incarnation of meekness.

But hush! hark!

A deep sound strikes like a rising knell:

'Me-ow-ow!'

Lawyers Clark and Thomas were wide awake and sitting bolt upright in an instant.

Again the startling cry:

'Ye-ow, ye-ow!'

'There's a cat!' whispered Clark.

''Scat you!' hissed Thomas.

The cat paid no attention to their demonstrations, but gave vent to another yowl.

'Oh, gracious!' cried Clark, 'I can't stand this! Where is he, Thomas?'

'On your side of the room, somewhere,' replied Thomas.

'No, he's on your side,' said Clark.

'Ye-ow-ow-owl'

'There I told you he was on your side,' they both exclaimed in a breath.

And still the howl went on.

The idea entered the heads of both lawyers—doubtless owing to their legal training—that by the exercise of a certain strategy they might be enabled to execute a grand flank movement on the cat, and totally demoralize him. Practically, each determined to file 'a motion to quash' the cat's attachment for that room.

Each kept his plan to himself, and in the dark, unable to see each other, prepared for action.

Strange as it may appear, it is nevertheless true that the same plan suggested itself to both. In words, the plan would be about as follows:

The yowler is evidently looking and calling for another cat, with whom he has made an appointment. I will imitate a cat, and this cat will think t'other cat's around. This cat will come toward me, and when he shall have arrived within reach, I'll blaze away with anything I can get a hold of, and knock the mew-sic out of him.

So each of the portly lawyers, noiselessly as the cream comes to the surface of the milk, hoisted himself on to his hands and knees, and hoppopotamus fashion, advanced to the neutral ground occupying the centre of the room.

Arriving there, lawyer Clark felt for and selected a boot-jack, and lawyer Thomas the heaviest boot from the heap, and settled themselves down to work.

Clark tightened his grip on the boot-jack, and throwing up his head, gave vent to a prolonged and unearthly 'Ye-ow-ow' that would have reflected credit upon ten of the larger cats.

'A-ah!' thought Thomas, who was not six feet away, 'he's immediately close around, now. I'll inveigle him!' and he gave the regular night-call of a feminine cat.

Each of the lawyers advanced a little closer, and Clark produced a questioning 'Ow-ow!'

Thomas answered by a reassuring 'Purow-purow!' and they advanced a little nearer.

They were now within easy reach, and each imagining the cat had but a moment to live, whaled away, the one with his boot, and the other with his boot-jack.

The boot took Clark square on the mouth, demolishing his teeth; and the boot-jack came down on Thomas' head just as he was in the midst of a triumphant 'Ye-ow!'

When the lights were brought in, the cat had disappeared, but the catastrophe was in the opposite corners of the room.

She Pitied Him.

The other day when the Illinois Central train pulled up to the platform at Wapella, a stout, rosy-cheeked country girl boarded it, and sat down on a turned seat facing a dude in tight pants, and a small, white hat. He at once determined to exercise his wiles on the poor thing and make a mash.

'Good mawning, Miss.' he said.

'Hoody-do,' she replied.

'Aw you going faw?'

'Huh, uh.'

'Whaah do you disembawk?'

'Huh?'

'Where do you get off the cahs?'

'I'm goin' to Bloomington.'

'Aw! I am going to stop theah, myself. Vewy happy to have such a chawming companion.'

'Well, the boys here say I'm mighty good company,' she replied. The dude got up, and sat down by her side.

'You aw a vewy pwetty young lady, and I am chawmed to be your escawt,' he said leaning over against her shoulder.

'Lean on your own breakfast,' she said, pushing him away.

'What did you say?' he asked, again crowding her.

'Lean on your own breakfast. I didn't eat enough for both of us. All I et this mornin' was four biscuits and two pieces of ham, two potatoes and nine slices of fried mush, and I don't feel like holdin' you up.' The dude looked considerably taken back, but he began a lot of small talk as the train pulled out, and the sturdy old farmers in the coach gradually became thoroughly angered as he sat up close to her and took her hand in his, and leaned on her shoulder and whispered to her.

Just as the train pulled into Bloomington the girl began to cry, and there were four old men on their feet in a minute, each of whom had made up his mind to thrash the dude within an inch of his life. One of them approached the pair, and kindly asked the girl:

'Did the snipe insult ye?'

'No—no—no!' she sobbed.

'Then what's the matter?'

'P-po-poor fellow!'

'Why, what air ye cryin' about, if he hain't insulted ye?'

'He's in d-da-danger, and I pity the p-po-poore feller,' she sobbed.

'Why! What is his danger?'

'He is so g-gree-green that I'm afraid he'll get off at some little t-tow-town and the cows will eat him up!' she cried, wringing his hands.

The last seen of him was as he turned a series of double summersaults alongside the train in a ditch, having jumped off when the train was making twenty miles an hour.

AN ATTENUATED STORY.

Jim Keene and his Washerwoman.

How She Managed to Accumulate a Fortune by Looking After His Linen, and the Job Keene Set Up on Her.

[Derrick Dodd, in San Francisco Post.]

'The fact is,' said Jim Keene, the great New York rival to Jay Gould, as he relaxed his usual taciturnity under the genial influence of one of Sam Ward's dinners not long ago, 'the fact is that no matter how clever and thorough a man's system of stock operating may be, there is always occuring some little unforseen and apparent insignificant circumstance that is forever knocking the best laid plans into a cocked hat.'

'As how?'

'Well, for instance, about a year ago I was doing a good deal in Lake Shore, and counted on making a big clean-up. I discovered, however, that there was some hidden influence in the market that was always against me. It didn't exactly defeat my plans, but it lessened the profits. I soon saw that there was some other operator who was kept informed as to my movements in time to make me pay for his knowledge.'

'Broker gave you away?' said several.

'Not at all. I never gave an order in advance, and besides I used, as now, half-a-dozen different brokers, and also gave 'cross' and 'dummy' orders in plenty. One day while I was standing at the window of my uptown place cogitating over this state of affairs, an elegant priyate coupe drove past and stopped just around the corner from my door. It contained a richly-dressed lady and a ragged-looking girl. The latter got out, rang my basement bell and was admitted. I sent for my manservant, and inquired who the girl might be.

'She comes for the wash, sir,' he said.

'Does she generally come in a coupe?' I inquired.

'Why, no, sir,' said the man, very much surprised; 'her mother, the washerwoman, is very poor.'

'Just then my own carriage drove round for me, and as it passed the other I could see the lady eagerly sorting the soiled clothes in the coupe on her lap. This excited my curiosity, so I had my driver follow along behind. Pretty soon the coupe stopped, and the dirty little girl got out with the bundle and went into a brownstone front on Twenty-ninth street. The coupe then kept straight on down to Wall street and stopped in front of a broker's office, where the lady alighted with my entire lot of soiled shirt cuff's in her hand.'

'Shirt cuff's?' cried the entire company.

'Exactly; shirt cuffs. I saw through it all in a moment. You see I am,—or rather was—a great hand while at dinner or at the theatre in the evening to think over my plans for the next day, and to make memorandums on my cuffs to consult before starting down town in the morning. My washerwoman found this out, and had been quicoppering' my game by means of my cuffs for over a year.'

'Well, by Jove!' said Sam Ward, pausing for a single instant in the sacred mystery of salad dressing.

'It's the cold fact,' continued Keene. 'In less than eight months she had cleaned up over $600,000, and was washing my clothes, at least the cuffs, in a $80,000 house. She had diamonds and horses until you couldn't rest.'

'You didn't make any more cuff mems, after that,' laughed several.

'Well, not many—just a few,' said the great operator, holding his Burgundy up to the light. 'I believe I kept it up about a month longer, at the end of which time I had raked in the washerwoman's bank account, and even had a mortgage on the brown-stone house. It was a queer coincidence, wasn't it?' But, perhaps, the information she found on the cuff's after that wasn't as exact as it had been, somehow, nor as reliable.'

And the King of the street emptied his glass with an indescribable wink that made Beach, who was short on Harlem, shiver like a cat who had just swallowed a live mouse.

Condensed Sermons, Etc.

Love is life's immortal prayer.

The fruit of religion is aspiration.

To imagine evil betrays affinity for it.

The heart is a better counselor than the tongue.

Speedy prayers do not lead very rapidly to devotion.

Suspicion is the ogre that sits upon the ruins of virtue.

Too much self-love makes men niggardly and wretched.

Wisdom does a person very little good if he doesn't live up to it.

Be satisfied with doing well, and leave others to do as they please.

Knowledge, economy and labor are the shining virtues of civilized man.

There is a mystery in the influence of vice that few seem to be able to fathom.

The votaries of doubtful pleasures never derive enjoyment from their indulgence.

Example is the best teacher. Its silent persuasiveness reaches the heart by the most direct route.

There is nothing that so lifts up the heart and soul of man as the consciousness of a duty well performed.

As long as you have the approval of your own conscience you need not care for the judgements of the envious.

If we were only as ready to forgive others as we are to forgive ourselves, the standard of manhood would be infinitely elevated.

The only way to make the mass of man kind see the beauty of justice is by showing them in pretty plain terms the consequence of injustice.

As the sun does not wait for prayers and incantatious before he rises, but straightway shines forth, and is hailed of all; so do not wait to do good for applause and noise and praise, but to do it of your own desire; and like the sun, you will be loved.

Men spend their lives in anticipations, in determining to be vastly happy at some period or other, when they have time. But the present time has one advantage over every other—it is our own.

Hon. A. G. CURTIN, subject to the decision of the congressional district convention.

LAST Saturday's Phila. Times in an editorial on "Party Losses and Gains" makes mention of two new bolters from Blaine and one from Cleveland, and shows the difference of those men. Hamilton Fish, the venerable ex-governor, and Benjamin H. Bristow, ex-secretary of the treasury under Grant, and a prominent candidate for President in 1876, both life-long republicans openly oppose Jas. G. Blaine, declaring their intention to vote for Cleveland. The kicker against Cleveland is an Irish congressman, with dynamite ideas, by the name of John F. Finerty. The Times closes its article with the following moral drawn from the foregoing facts: "The best elements of the Republican party bolt Blaine; the worst elements of the Democratic party bolt Cleveland, and that is why the intelligent, sober voters of the nation are likely to elect Cleveland on the single issue of honest government.

Ex-Governor Curtin's Unanimous Nomination.

CLEARFIELD, Pa., Sept. 14.—The result of the democratic primaries yesterday is the unanimous nomination of Curtin for congress, Potter having declined to run. The returns thus far indicate the nomination of Norris for assembly. Troxell for treasurer and Savage and Brown for commissioners.

THE republicans of the Forty-ninth judicial district have nominated A. O. Furst, esq., of Bellefonte, for president judge.

DEMOCRATS, as the campaign advances and becomes warmer, do not fail to support and work for the whole county ticket. Our candidates have been nominated by the voice of your delegates assembled in convention and it is every good Democrat's duty to abide by the decision of that convention. Besides, the nominees are all honest and intelligent citizens and eminently worthy of your support. There is no earthly plausible reason, why the county democrecy should not give their candidates the same creditable majority as in former years.

EDITOR TUTEN, of the Bellefonte Republican says he calmly awaits the withdrawal of Governor Cleveland from the National ticket. Well, brother you may wait. Nobody objects.

THE PROHIBITION RACKET.

If anybody thinks that the Prohibitionists are not in earnest in this campaign he is woefully deceived. They were never more determined to engage in a contest 'on their own hook,' than now, in nearly every State in the Union. The Republican bosses by the aid of the 'magnetic influence,' have succeeded in switching off some of the rank and file in Maine, but that is the only state in which the Prohibition party has been betrayed by its professed adherents. Recent advices affirm that the Republicans are very much alarmed over the strength and energy displayed by the temperence people in the two close states of Ohio and Illinois. The Republican papers are berating and blackguarding the Prohibitionists as roundly as they are their old enemies the Democrats. But the 'Fanatics' as they are called don't appear to worry very much over the abuse. Indeed, if it has any effect it is to make them more bitter against the Republicans who have deluded them with false hopes for lo, these many years. The Republican policy has always been one of duplicity on the liquor question. That party has invariably played to win both the liquor and prohibition vote; and now there is every indication that at the next election it will receive the punishment which its double-dealing course justly merits. The Prohibition candidate for Governor of Illinois predicts that either himself or Harrison will be elected Governor and that the Republican candidate does not stand the slighest chance of success. The same condition of affairs, it is said, exists in Ohio that prevails in Illinois, and the Republicans are likely to be beaten at the October election, in which event, Blaine would abandon his canvass.

EX-SENATOR WILLIAM A. WALLACE from this state addressed a large and enthusiastic democratic massmeeting at Harper's Ferry, W. Va. His speech was received with great interest and applause.

What it Said in 1881.

The Irish World opposes Cleveland and supports Blaine. The reason for change of heart is assumed to be a personal grievance against Gov. Cleveland. The editor was fined and imprisoned for slandering Mr. Belmont, and the Governor refused executive clemency in his case.

The editor's real views in regard to Blaine found forcible utterance in 1884 as follows:

EXIT BLAINE—"HE WILL NEVER SIT IN THE PRESIDENTIAL CHAIR."

Mr. Blaine has stepped down and out from the office of Secretary of State. We are glad that Mr. Blaine's Anglo-Americanism will have no longer a chance to display itself in the most important position in the President's cabinet. His disgraceful conduct in the Boynton case stamps him as a man who has no conception of what is due to the dignity of American citizenship. It would have been more to the credit of the United States government if Blaine had resigned before the arrest and imprisonment, without trial, of American citizens residing in Ireland.

We understand that the ex-Secretary has still hopes of reaching the object of his life ambition—viz: the Presidency.

We feel as certain as we can be of any future event, that JAMES G. BLAINE OF MAINE WILL NEVER SIT IN THE PRESIDENTIAL CHAIR. He is not the first whose flunkeyism to England has killed Presidential aspirations. Charles Francis Adams is one example, and King, who, in the early part of this century, was Minister to England, is another.

There is a rumor to the effect that the President intends offering the mission to England to the ex-Secretary. No doubt the position would be an acceptable one to him, as it would afford him the chance to display his 'devoted loyality to Queen Victoria.' But luckily for the honor of the country, there is no chance of Blaine's nomination being confirmed if sent to the Senate. He had a chance of making a name for himself by defeating the rights of American citizens, which had been trampled upon by the English government, but the flunkeyism of the man prevented him from grasping the golden opportunity. He now returns into private life with the consciousness that he has won the good will of the English government at a price that he will yet regret having paid.

TAMMANY democracy solid for Cleveland means a rousing majority for the democratic national ticket in New York in November and the election of it in the U. S. And don't you forget it!

The Western Party Break-Up.

When the Philadelphia Times predicted political revolutions as certain to follow the action of the two Chicago National Conventions, the party organs on both sides denounced tha suggestion as entirely unwarranted. That was only two months ago, and to-day the party organs are finally compelled to look revolution in the face and confess its growth and probable omnipotence in the national contest.

The first broad and manly confession of the revolutionary tendencies of the contest that comes from a party organ, may be found in a leading editorial from the Chicago Inter-Ocean copied in to-day's paper. The Inter-Ocean is one of the ablest and most earnest Republican organs of the West, and in it is finally forced to blurt out the truth, in the face of an incompetent or inefficient National Committee and of the regulation reckless promises of dependent organs.

Instead of proclaiming Illinois as safe for the Republicans and painting the progress of the campaign in glowing colors, the Inter-Ocean is forced to proclaim the truth and summon the party leaders to extreme measures to halt the revolution that is gravely threatening Republican success in Ohio, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, and even Iowa and Kansas.

The party leaders and party organs have assumed that this campaign would be controlled by the same issues and agents that have controlled the strictly party battles of the last quarter of a century; but they now see, when nearly if not quite too late, the old issues have lost their force, and that new issues, new energies, new batteries and new guns must be brought to the front. However inefficient or incompetent the Republican National Committee may be, it is unfair to hold it responsible for the revolutionary elements of the campaign. It is not the lack of Republican management that has made the Blaine campaign more than doubtful within the last four weeks; it is the now clearly visible out-cropping of political revolution, and it will have its way and its sway until its work shall be finished.

The plain truth that the Republicans must now face is that there is not a certain Blaine State from Ohio to the Northern Lakes and the Pacific Ocean, and why they are doubtful is told in the general revolutionary action of the people. Prohibition and Labor are great factors, but why are they so? They are the safety valves of wearied party servitude and they become paramount not because they are greater issues than in the past, but because greater issues have served their purpose and perished. Revolution is in the air, and that is why half the Republican States are doubtful for November.—Times.

An exchange says that "Black Jack Logan has a bad record in the G. A. R. In 1868 he insisted upon dragging that body into politics, and as a consequence 900 posts in Ohio and Illinois were nearly crushed out of existence. When he saw the organization on the decline, he allowed his name to be dropped for non payment of dues; he was refused re-admission to his own post afterwards, and was black balled when his name was suggested. His swinging around at military reunions would be in singularly bad taste for any one but the swarthy Illinoise senator."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 13, 1884.

The suicide of Mr. Squier's, the Washington broker, at his home in K street, brings home, with a startling emphasis, the lessons of judgement following misdeeds that other cities have been taught. Mr. Squier's death was strikingly like that of President Runyon, of the New Brunswick bank, and both bear the same moral.

The only new name mentioned as likely to succeed Secretary Folger is that of Gen. Sharpe, of New York. It is generally acknowledged, however, that no one here knows anything about the President's intention in the matter, and the only reason for connecting Gen. Sharpe's name with the Treasury fortfolio arises from the particularly intimate personal relations existing between the President and that gentleman.

It was currently reported among the clerks in the Treasury Department this afternoon that Gen. Sharpe had been appointed Secretary of the Treasury. Upon inquiring at the White House, it was learned that not a word had been heard from the President on the subject. Notwithstanding that, however, it was the general impression that Gen. Sharpe would be appointed.

There is a good deal of talk, particularly among democrats, about the alleged deal between President Arthur and the republican managers, whereby the former is to support Blaine in consideration of the latter's assistance towards electing him (Arthur) Senator from New York in place of Mr. Lapham. Some democrats do not believe there is such a trade, but most of them do. According to this talk, Gen. Sharpe is to be appointed Secretary of the Treasury, with instructions to help Blaine all that is possible.

The September drouth came too late to be of much injury to the crops, which the Department of Agriculture reports will be bounteous and of good quality. There will be the largest corn crop ever known, aggregating 1,800,000,000 bushels. There will be a round billion bushels of wheat and a half a billion bushels of oats. Barley, rye, buckwheat and potatoes also show up well. The tobacco crop has been injured somewhat in Virginia by the heat, but further north had been helped by the same cause, so that the crop as a whole will be larger and better in quality than usual. The corresponding crops in Europe, while finer than for several years, are not sufficient to supply local needs, so that there will be a good foreign market for our produce. Finally, the stock on hand is not large, so that the market will not be weighed down by the supply. In short, the outlook is very favorable both for the farmer and the consumer. H.

THE republican majority in Maine is now on the decline. We shall prabably have no further reports from Walker Blaine of the Kennebec Journal. The republican plurality has dropped down to 19,709, with eighteen democratic towns to hear from. The republican majority over all is now 15,122. The whole republican vote is 77,779, or 2,221 less than claimed by James G. Blaine when he fixed it at 80,000. In 1880 the republican vote for governor was 73,597 and in 1876 it was 75,710. This shows that with all the bargaining, buying, blustering and bullying on the part of Blaine, and with no effort on the part of the democrats to hold their vote, the republicans in Maine have gained but 2,069 votes since 1876 and but 4,182 since 1880, not any more than their natural increase, considering the fact that the greenback republicans in the state have returned to the party. A poor showing indeed.—Patriot.

IN TIME OF PEACE PREPARE FOR PEACE.—Changes of climate, diet and water, ofttimes atmospheric changes alone, will subject some member of the family to cholera morbus, dysentery, &c., when the wail of misery in the "wee sma' hours of the night" announce the fact, and you are sent from your comfortable bed across lots of down back alleys for a doctor, 'twould be a good time to reflect that had you only secured a bottle of Curtis' Carmelite Cordial in time, you could with a few drops have headed off the attack, saved a doctor's bill, and secured a peaceful night's rest. Dissatisfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

Superior Excellence.

The reasons for PERUNA'S superior excellence in all diseases, and its modus operandi, are fully explained in Dr. Hartman's lecture, reported in his book on the "Ills of Life and How to Cure Them," from page 1 to page 10 though the whole book should be read and studied to get the full value of this par excellent remedy. These books can be had at all the drug stores gratis.

W. D. Williams, U. S. Pension Agent and Notary Public, New Vienna, Clinton County, Ohio, writes: "I take great pleasure in testifying to your medicines. I have used about one bottle and a half, and can say I am almost a new man. Have had the catarrh about twenty years. Before I knew what it was, had settled on the lungs and breast, but can now say I am almost well. Was in the army; could get no medicine there that would relieve me."

Col. E. Finger, Ashland, Ohio, writes: "I am happy to say I have used several bottles of your medicine called PERUNA, and my health has been greatly improved by it. I cheerfully recommend PERUNA to all who suffer with heart trouble, as being an invaluable medicine."

Rev. J. M. Ingling, Altamont, Ill., writes: "My father-in-law, who resides with me has been using your PERUNA for kidney disease, which has afflicted him for forty years and could get no relief until he saw your medicine. I induced him to try a bottle, which he did, and the one bottle of PERUNA and one bottle of MANALIN has given him more relief than all the other medicines he ever used."

Mr. Robert Grimes, Rendville, Ohio, writes: "My wife has been an intense sufferer from chronic catarrh, and after every other remedy had failed she commenced to use your PERUNA and MANALIN. They have helped my dear wife more than anything she has ever used. She has now taken two bottles, and is so much better that she will never quit its use until she is entirely well. It has wonderfully improved her sight. We think PERUNA and MANALIN will cure any disease."

R. Palmer, Pastor of the A. M. E. Church, No. 192 Canal Street, Wilkesbarre Luzerne Co., Pa., writes: "Having used your PERUNA, and by experience became acquainted with its value, I write asking you to please send me five bottles of PERUNA and one of MANALIN by express and oblige, your humble servant."

Cook Bros., Prospect, Marion County, Ohio, writes: "We have a good trade on PERUNA, our customers speak well of it.

JAS. R. IRWIN, druggist, Curwisville, Pa., writes:

"J. A. McDonald, Dear Sir:—Send us ½ gross of your Worm Powders, they give good satisfaction to our trade. Professionally, I always recommend them, as I consider they embody to the utmost the principal and most desirable points in vermifuge—smallness of dose, easiness to take, compactness and elegance, while our steadily increasing sales attest their value as a worm destroyer and the satisfaction they give our trade."

Dissatitfied purchasers can have their money refunded.

—Mr. E. Bartholomew showed us a large and splendid lithograph of the Philadelphia Institute for the Deaf and Dumb, of which one of his daughters is an inmate. He naturally prices the picture very much.

—The Pennsylvania railroad is now built as far as Lemont, and a heavy force of men are working on the piece between Lemont and Bellefonte. It is thought that the whole distance will be completed by the first of January.

—Mr. J. W. Cornelius, the expert photographer from Lewisburg, was in town to visit his former pupil, Mr. Geo. Buck. Both gentlemen called on us on Tuesday afternoon. Always glad to have a chat with you. Come again.

—We learn that E. K., while helping to paint the ceiling of the U. B. church, put on some heavy touches. At least it loosened some of the plastering ; but no paint was spilt. Were you hunting ghosts up there, Mr. H-a-a-s ?

—Mrs. Jacob Frank, of Madisonburg, while crossing a bridge near her premises, stepped on a loose plank and was thrown into the small stream. She received injuries in her head and caught a heavy cold, which confined her to bed ever since.

—Rev. M. A. Sloat, pastor of the Evangelical church at New Kingston, Cumberland county, Pa. died on Wednesday, September 10th, having reached the age of sixty years. Rev. Sloat, some eight years ago, preached on this circuit and was well-known to many of our readers.

—The annual reunion of the Gast family is being held in Wolf's grove, Miles township, to-day. There will be speeches, vocal and instrumental music and other exercises. The family being widely connected, a large number of people will be present and an enjoyable time is expected.

—D. M. Rockey, Administrator of the estate of Solomon Kleckner, late of Miles township, deceased, will make public sale of the real estate of the deceased, on Saturday, Oct. 11th. At the same time Mrs. Catherine Kleckner the widow of decedent, will offer for sale her personal property.

—Mr. John Kerstetter, Jr., still makes a business of doing special jobs at carpentry. John is really an expert at the business and has large experince, both in making out plans, specifications and drawings, as well as a practical workman. People who entrust their work into his hands can safely rely on having it done in best style at the lowest prices. tf

—The Harvest Home Thanksgiving services which were held in the Madisonburg Reformed church, on the 10th instant, were well attended, although the heat was intense. Rev. Wm. Landis assisted pastor N. J. Miller on this occasion. Services were also held on the day following at Tylersville.

—The band treated the town to an open air concert last Thursday evening from a very elevated point. They took possession of the top scaffolds of the new church, a height of 50 feet and gave their sweet strains to the brisk air, which carried them to every part of town. The boys go in for anything that is novel.

FIRE.—On Monday morning the house and all the smaller outbuildings of Mrs. John Emerick, located in Nittany valley, two miles east of Hublersburg, were totally destroyed by fire. All the contents of the house with the exception of a piano and a trunk, were consumed by the flames. The lady is unable to account for the fire.

ANOTHER FIRE.—On Tuesday afternoon, shortly after dinner, the house and barn of Aaron Auman, about 1½ miles southwest of Aaron Zerby's, behind the first mountain burned to the ground. The buildings are supposed to have caught fire from sparks from the flue, while the family were in the field. When the fire was discovered, nothing could be saved from the flames except a few chairs and buckets. All the crops which were housed were destroyed.

TIME.—A festival will be held in the town hall at Millheim in the afternoon and evening of Saturday, September 20th, 1884. The refreshments will be Ice Cream, Cakes, Lemonade and Oysters. Proceeds to be applied to purchasing a Town Clock. All are invited to come.

By order of Committee.

PROHIBITION CONVENTION.—A Prohibition County Convention will be held in the hall of the Y.M.C.A., Bellefonte Pa. Thursday Sept. 25th, at 10 o'clock, a. m, with a view of nominating a County ticket. All who intend supporting the Prohibition Candidates with their votes are earnestly requested to be present. THOS. J. TAYLOR, President.
REV. W. W. REESE, Secretary.

—A full line of Fall Goods just received at D. S. Kauffman & Co's. Bargain Store. A complete line of Clothing. Suits from $2.50 to $25.00. Overcoats of all descriptions and qualities. —Jonathan Harter's "John horse" is no more. The animal took sick several days ago, it is thought of the intense heat and all the medical treatment failed to restore him to health. The horse was raised by Mr. Harter, had been used by him and his family for 16 years, and was highly valued by them.

—The people will naturally expect to get a good deal of politics in their papers until after the election, and the JOURNAL, like its contemporaries, will be compelled to devote considerable space each week to political topics. Nevertheless we shall try to keep our readers posted on all the events of interest transpiring in this neighborhood, and give as much matter of a miscellaneous nature as possible.

—Next Saturday the township election will take place at Musser's hotel, at which it will be decided whether or not the place of election for Penn township shall be changed to Coburn. A warm time is looked for. For our part we certainly do not like to see the change go into effect, and we persume many of our citizens share our feelings in this matter.

—Sixty thousand copies of Ex-Gov. Curtin's famous speech in Congress against Monopoly and for Labor were ordered by the Democratic National Committee for circulation in the county.

Talk about sending some other man to Congress, when this district has one of the best orators and finest statesmen in the person of Hon. A. G. Curtin, who is the nominee of this county for that position. It would be a great blunder.

—Teacher's examination for Penn township and Millheim borough was held yesterday in the grammar school room on Penn street. Supt. Wolf examined a class of 5 teachers, and the required certificates enabling them to secure schools this winter were granted. We were unable to witness proceedings, but it is a foregone conclusion with us, that Prof. Wolf with his well-known ability made the examination very interesting to the participants.

—The work on the interior of the U. B. church is nearing completion, and the room presents a very much improved appearance. The walls are nicely painted and ornamented, the pulpit has been re-arranged to more advantage, a side-door has been inserted in the eastern wall in the front part of the audience chamber, and the seats have been touched up by a coat of paint. The whole job reflects credit on the contractor, Mr. John Lose. The outside of the building will be painted as soon as cooler weather prevails.

GAME LAWS AND PENALTIES.—The open season is, for Birds—Wild turkeys, October 1 to January 1, $10 ; duck, September 1 to January 1, $10 ; woodcock, July 4 to January 1, $10 ; quail or partridge, October 15 to January 1, $10; ruffled or pinnated grouse, October 1 to January 1, $10 ; rail and reed birds, September 1 to December 1, $5 ; Animals---Elk and deer, October 1 to December 1, $50 ; squirrels, September 1 to January 1, $5 ; hares and rabbits November 1 to January 1, $5 ; Fish--Salmon or speckled trout, April 1 to August 1, $10 ; lake trout, October 1 to January 1, $10 ; black bass, pike and pickerel, June 1 to January 1, $10.

—PETERSON'S MAGAZINE for October comes to us with an increase of pages, and a more brilliant array than ever of steel-plates, colored fashions, colored patterns, and illustrative wood-engravings. The principal steel-plates, "Playing At Being Grandpa and Grandma," is as graphic as it is humorous— one of the very best things of the kind we have ever seen. The stories, continued and otherwise, are exceptionally good : in this respect, "Peterson" has long been without a rival. Some hints are whispered, in this number, in advance, as to what is to be done in 1885 ; and it is not too early, it is added, to begin to get up clubs for that year. The best way to see what is intended, and to test the merits of "Peterson." is to send for a specimen-copy, which will be sent, gratis, if written for in good faith. Address CHARLES J. PETERSON, 306 Chestnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

—General George B. McClellan, according to the Watchman, is expected to address a big meeting of the democratic voters of this county at Bellefonte sometime during this campaign. Ex-Gov. Curtin, who is a personal and political friend of the General, has expressed his intention to get him there. That is good news, and our end will surely turn out en masse to hear the renowned speaker.

MULTUM IN PARVO.—McDonald's Great Blood Purifier or Sarsaparillian Alterative is the most highly concentrated, most harmonizing and skillfully combined of all the blood medicine offered the public. Many certificates from well-known and worthy persons could be furnished to substantiate the virtues claimed for this great medicine, but the manufacturer prefers simply to say any purchaser feeling the benefit derived from the use of a bottle not equivalent to the seventy-five cents invested in the purchase can have their money returned.

In fact they run the bargain in this neighborhood and we advise our readers to go and call at their place and bring their neighbors along. We are certain it will pay them.

—Large posters have been printed at this office, advertising the public sale of the late Adam Fisher estate, in Gregg township by the executors, J. B. ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth ? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Miscellaneous.

Congress has voted $300,000 in order to make a fine display of the government exhibits at the World's Exposition next winter. Some of the departments had only a rudimentary collection at the time of the Centennial at Philadelphia. These collections have been increased tenfold since then, and will be opened at New Orleans in fine order. The United States Geological Survey will furnish a fine exhibit of minerals, ores and rocks from all the States and Territories. It has a collection of interesting fossil animals and fossils exhibiting the characteristics of animals and plants now extinct. It has models of extinct volcanoes, the Grand Canon of Colorado, Yosemite Valley and the National Park. It has plans of the Comstock and other great mines of the country. To describe the specimens representing the life of former ages, fishes, reptiles, gigantic quadrupeds, now extinct, shell fish that have lived in ancient geological periods, would require a large volume.

—FOR habitial constipation, billiousness, sick headache, torpidity of the liver, congestion of the kidneys, malaria and all complication arising from a degenerated condition of the bowels, liver or kidneys, McDonald's Improved Liver Pills can be depended upon for certain and permanent relief ; as a dinner pill, gentle cathartic and safe aperient, they are without an equal. Many eminent physicians use them in their daily practice. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

A Terrible Catastrophe.

A Great Flood in China—70,000 Persons Perish in the Water.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 15.—The steamer San Pablo arrived here last evening bringing advice from Hong Kong to the 14th ultimo and from Yokohoma to the 30th ultimo. Information had reached Canton of a frightful inundation in the province of Kiangsee. The news is dated at King-Tak, the chief centre of the pottery manufacture and one of the four great markets of the empire. The floods lasted four days and the entire country was submerged to the depth of sixty feet. Whole towns were swept away. It is believed that fully 70,000 persons perished. It was feared that a pestilence would follow. Cholera had broke out at Amoy. The number of deaths is not given. It has been declared to be an infected port.

Terrible Death of a Berks County Farmer.

READING, Sept. 15.—Jacob Smith, aged forty-six years, a farmer of North Heidelberg, skinned his arm while thrashing. A poisonous plant came in contact with the wound, and Smith became ill. His arm swelled to four times its natural size, and his body became bloated. He died to-day in great agony. Mrs. Daniel Well, who nursed him, was stricken down this morning, and she is now dying from the effects of poison contracted through a cut on her hand.

Her body is rapidly swelling like that of Smith's, whose corpse has turned black.

Recently the National Bank of New Brunswick, New Jersey, failed through the dishonesty of the cashier, Hill, who upon the discovery of his conduct committed suicide. On Monday the president of the Bank Mr. Runyon, committed suicide also. The excitement of the double suicide of the president and cashier threw the people into intense feeling. Walter Carroll, a depositor, who lost heavily by the bank, committed suicide also. The bank examiners have discovered a deficit of near one million dollars. A number of estates and firms are practically ruined.

Five hundred miners were thrown out of employment at Wilkesbarre, on Sept. 5th, by the enterprise mine caving in. Nearly two hundred acres of ground sank from six to eight feet. The Lehigh Valley railroad settled nearly six feet, and traffic was stopped for some hours. The air of the mines was driven with violence of an explosion and forced its way out of the shaft almost totally wrecking the inside workings. The ground is covered with seams for several hundred yards and five houses belonging to minors in the employ of the company are wrecked. Great fears are entertained that the mine is entirely ruined.

Who Mulligan is.

THE OCCUPATIONS AND PECULIARITIES OF A MAN WHO FIGURES IN THE PRESENT CANVASS.

Boston Letter in the St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

One of the notables of the Hub, and particularly at the present time, is James Mulligan, of Mulligan letter fame. For several years he has led a very retired life, and so little has been heard of him that many believed him dead. But he is some ways from death yet, and, though somewhat in years, is still active. He can be seen almost any day at the United States Hotel, where he has lived a bachelor's life for nearly thirty yeras in quiet comfort, occupying two richly furnished apartments. Personally he is about five feet eight inches in height, of spare build, pale from confinement of years to the clerk's desk, with brown eyes and dark hair.

He is quite approachable and is an interesting conversationalist. To be sure, the most of his conversation during the past eight years has been upon the subject of letters which Blaine wrote to him; but the reason of this is that everybody who meets him always insists upon talking upon that subject. But Mulligan never tires of it—in fact, he has to say about just so much in reference to them every day or else he doesn't feel like himself. His existence is made somewhat unhappy by the repeated visits of correspondents and newspaper men, who seek to interview him and secure copies of the remaining letters in his posession. He manages, however to keep them at a distance and refuses to say anything whatever upon the matter to them. His daily mail is voluminous on the subject, but he never answers any of the inquiries. Some of the letters he receives are of a threatening nature. Several times he has been notified that he would be waylaid and assaulted when a good opportunity offered, so that he rarely remains out nights and only when in company with gentlemen upon whom he can rely for assistance and protection.

He has nothing to worry him but this, for he is quite wealthy and lives as he cares to upon his income. He manages the estate left by the senior Fisher at his death and several others as well. Fisher thought a great deal of Mulligan and appointed him a trustee of his property. Mulligan was born in Dublin, is a devout Catholic and a patriotic Irishman. In politics he is a Democrat. He hates General Butler cordially, but speaks well of Mr. Blaine, denominating him "a good fellow." He says that he would not have produced the letters in 1876, at the time of the Congressional investigation, had it not been for the request of Blaine and the insinuations that "he, a mere book-keeper, would not dare testify against Blaine."

Mulligan was the confidential bookkeeper of Jacob Stamwood, of this city, in 1851. In 1865 he was employed by the Adams Sugar Refinery Company, in which Warren Fisher, Jr., was interested and to whom Mulligan was a confinential clerk. Later he was treasurer of the Globe Theatre here. As before stated, he does little or nothing now. His pleasures are few. He loves a good cigar, however, and delights to go to the theatre. He has a number of letters, written to him and to Mr. Fisher, which the anti-Blaine newspaers are eager to get. They are said to be as important as those which have been made public. Enormous sums of money have been offered for these letters, but he refuses to sell them. He has promised to give them to a Boston paper for publication shortly as well as an interview which will contain all he knows about the matter.

A Very Strange Marriage.

A Man of Sixty Wedded to His Seventeen-Year-Old Adopted Daughter.

[Cleveland (O.) Special.]

Jacob Kritch is one of the solid business men of this city. He is Superintendent of the Cleveland Axle Manufacturing Company. Kritch some years ago invented a patent axle-box, which brought him in considerable wealth, and from which he still receives a royality on all manufactured in the United States. Until last summer he resided in a beautiful residence at 1420 Wilson avenue. Last June Mrs. Kritch died, and soon after the disconsolate widower engaged a suit of rooms in the Myers Block, corner of Woodland and Irving streets, where he still resides.

Kritch has but two children, K. E. Kritch, a well-to-do business man, and an adopted daughter, Bertha, a very handsome young lady, who has been for some time attending school at the convent at Nottingham. Superintendent Kritch and his late wife adopted Bertha sixteen years ago, when she was an infant one year old, and she has always been a dutiful daughter. She was overwhelmed with grief when her mother died, ten months ago, but soon rallied from her sorrow and was once more the happy, guileless school girl.

The lonely widower became enamored of a handsome lady of White avenue and the spinster and the venerable beau Kritch were affianced. The match was approved by friends of both parties. It was not a May and December match by any means, but rather an August and December one, as the lovely maid was nearing her fortieth aniversary on earth, while lover Kritch was in his sixtieth year. The aged but nimble swain took his sweetheart to the theatre, out riding, and to various places, and last week they visited Bertha at Nottingham, and her father acquainted his daughter of the proposed marriage, at the same time introducing her to her mother to be.

A few days afterward Bertha received permission to go home for a few days, and now comes the strangest part of the narrative. Superintendent Kritch obtained a short leave of absence, and he and his adopted daughter Bertha repaired to Erie, Pa., on April 30. A license had been previously obtained, and they were united in marriage by the Rev. Val Kern, of the Protestant Evangelical Church May 1. The May festival being over, they returned to Cleveland, and Bertha remained with her husband until yesterday, when he took her back to school. The bashful groom is sixty and the blushing bride about seventeen.

An instinctive taste teaches men to build their churches in flat countries with spire steeples, which, as they can not be referred to any other object, point as with silent finger to the sky and stars.

Real merit of any kind can not be concealed; it will be discovered, and nothing can depreciate it but a man's showing it himself. It may not always be rewarded as it ought; but it will always be known.

TO LIVE.—
So should we live that every hour
May fall as falls the natural flower,
A self-reviving thing of power;

That every thought and every deed
May hold within itself a seed
Of future good and future need;

Esteeming sorrow, whose employ
Is to develop, not destroy,
Far better than a barren joy.

DOWNS' ELIXIR.

N. H. DOWNS'

Vegetable Balsamic

ELIXIR

For the cure of
Consumption, Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Croup, Asthma, Pleurisy, Hoarseness, Influenza, Spitting Blood, Bronchitis, and all diseases of the Throat, Chest, and Lungs. In all cases where this Elixir is used its efficacy is at once manifested, convincing the most incredulous that is not incurable, if properly attended to.—At its commencement it is but a slight irritation of the membrane which covers the Lungs; then an inflamation, when the cough is rather dry, local fever, and the pulse more frequent, the cheeks flushed and chills more common. This Elixir in curing the above complaints, operates so as to remove all morbid irritations and inflamation from the lungs to the surface, and finally expel them from the system. It facilitates expectoration.

It heals the ulcerated surfaces and relieves the cough and makes the breathing easy. It supports the strength and at the same time reduces the fever. It is free from strong opiate and astringent articles, which are of so drying a nature as to be in great danger of destroying the patient; whereas this medicine never dries or stops the cough, but, by removing the CAUSE, consequently, when the cough is cured the patient is well. Send address for pamphlet giving full directions, free.

Price 35 cts., 50 cts., and $1.00 per bottle.
